MALACHI FORETELLS A NEW DAY

GOLDEN TEXT—Behold, I send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me.—Malachi 3:1.

LESSON TEXT—Malachi 3:1-12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Promise of God's Blessing.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Promise of God's Blessing.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Part in Bringing in a Better Day.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Preparing the Way of the Lord.

The subject of today's lesson is broader than the printed text. In order to teach this lesson effectively the entire book should be surveyed. The prophet pointed out the sins of a corrupt priesthood, mixed marriages, and failure to pay tithes.

I. The Awful Ingratitude of Israel (1:1-5).

God approached them with the tender affirmation, "I have loved you." It was the burden of the prophet to declare this fact unto them (1:2). So worldly were the people that they failed to discern God's good hand upon them. Israel's attitude toward God is shown in the skeptical question, "Wherein hast thou loved us?" (v. 2:17) Malachi answers this question by showing God's choice of Jacob and his passing by of Esau, his destruction of Edom and his saving of Israel.

1. The Sins Ingratitude of Israel (1:1-5).

So worldly were the people that they failed to discern God's good hand upon them. Israel's attitude toward God is shown in the skeptical question, "Wherein hast thou loved us?" (v. 2:17) Malachi answers this question by showing God's choice of Jacob and his passing by of Esau, his destruction of Edom and his saving of Israel.

1. The Sins Ingratitude of Israel (1:1-5).

2. Sacrilege (1:7, 8).

Their sacrilegious act was in offering polluted bread and blemished sacrifices. To bring such offerings to an earthly ruler would be a gross insult.

(5) Greed (1:10).

They were not willing to open the doors of God's house without pay.

(4) Weariness (1:12, 13). Because of the absence of some irksome. God threatened them with severe punishment unless they would take His rebukes to heart.

(5) Not teaching the law to the people (2:1-9). Those set apart to teach God's law to the people have a great responsibility and God will most assuredly demand an accounting.

2. Against the people (2:10-17; 3:7-15).

(1) For ungodly marriages (2:11, 12). God's purpose in the prohibition of mixed marriages was that He might raise up a holy seed (v. 15). The marriage of the believer with the unbeliever today brings confusion into the fold of God and turns aside His purpose.

(2) For divorce (2:13-16). Divorce in Israel was the source of great sorrow—even the tears of the wronged women covering the altar (v. 13).

(3) Public wrongs (3:5, 6).

a. Sorcery—magic arts. This includes the practice of occult sciences.

b. Adultery. This is a sin of wider extent than to the parties directly concerned. It is a canker which gnaws at the very heart of society. Unfaithfulness to the marriage relation should be regarded as a public sin.

c. False swearing.

d. Oppression of the hireling, widow and fatherless.

e. Turning aside the stranger from his rights.

(4) Withholding tithes (3:7-12). Failure to pay tithes is robbery of God. His claim upon Israel was the tenth, plus free-will offerings. Our responsibility is to give as God prospers us (I Cor. 16:1).

(5) Blasphemy (3:13-15). They openly spoke against God, saying that it was profitless to serve Him.

III. The Awful Judgment Which Shall Befall the Nation (3:1-5; 4:1-6).

1. By whom executed (v. 1).

It is to be done by the Lord. All judgment has been committed unto the Son of God (Jno. 5:22, 30, cf. Acts 17:30, 31). When Christ comes in power and glory to render judgment, He will distinguish between the righteous and the wicked, rewarding them according to their deeds.

2. The time of (3:2-4:1).

It will be at the second coming of Christ. John the Baptist was the forerunner of His first coming. Elijah will be the forerunner of His second coming.

3. The result (3:3, 4, 16-18; 4:1, 2).

For the righteous it will be a day of healing and salvation; for the wicked a day of burning and destruction.

More Sorrow, More Joy

The more sorrow the more joy. If we have loads of sorrow, then the Lord's power will turn them into tons of joy. Then the bitterer the trouble the sweeter the pleasures; the swing of the pendulum far to the left will cause it to go all the farther to the right. The remembrance of the grief shall heighten the flavor to the delight; and the brilliance of the diamond shall be the more clearly seen because of the black foil behind it.—Spurgeon

SUDBURY PLANS TO HONOR GEN. DAWES

Party for the Ambassador in Ancestral Home.

London.—In 1605 a stone mason named William Dawes left his home in Sudbury, Suffolk, and set sail for America. In 1929 one of his descendants, Gen. Charles Gates Dawes, left his home in America and set sail for England as American ambassador to the court of St. James.

Sudbury desires to recognize official by the fact that the Dawes family prospered in America, and that the most notable member of the family has come back to England as official representative of the United States government. So Sudbury is to give a party for General Dawes.

The ceremony is scheduled for early in October. The freedom of the borough will be bestowed upon the American ambassador. There will be a public luncheon, followed by a special meeting of the council. The charming little town will do full justice to the occasion. The achievements of the Dawes family will be fittingly honored.

To America in 1635.

William Dawes was a boy of fifteen when he boarded the ship Planter on April 6, 1635, and started West to found the American branch of the Dawes family. His father, William Dawes, Sr., had gone out to America in 1628 with Governor Winthrop, founder of Boston and Salem, but returned the following year. He and his wife returned on the Ambrose and a son was born on the voyage. The boy was christened Ambrose.

General Dawes would like to know more about the first William Dawes, for there is no trace of him in the family history except for the record of his round trip to the New world. A great deal more is known about young William, founder of the American family. "He settled first in Braintree, Mass.," General Dawes said in tracing the family history, "where he married Susanna Mills of that place. The marriage took place about 1641. The marriage was twenty-one years of when William was twenty-one years of age. A son, named in the records Ambrose, after his step-born uncle, was born in the same year.

Baronetcy Now Extinct.

"In the year 1922 we find William Dawes settled in Boston, where he built for himself a family mansion on the east side of a lane afterwards called 'Sudbury street.' Five generations of our family lived in this house until it was pulled down in 1775. William Dawes died in the year 1705, at the good old age of eighty-three, leaving numerous descendants, from one of whom I am descended."

A privately printed record of the Dawes family, published in Boston in 1876, was compiled by Henry W. Holland for the New England Historical and Genealogical society. General Dawes owns this work, which contains portraits and a complete genealogical tree. The American branch of the Dawes family has always claimed the right to the arms of Abraham Dawes of Putney, who suffered under Cromwell and was made a baronet by Charles II at the restoration. The baronetcy is now extinct. The shield bears three swans on a bend in a field of six battle axes. The crest is a dragon supported by a battle ax.

Effort at Hypnotism Cause of Pistol Fight

Paris.—Keep your parlor tricks for parties is the moral of a trial at the Seine Assizes.

Louis Duc, a market employee, was in company in a cafe one evening with two men friends and a woman. One of the friends, Barnard by name, offered to hypnotize Duc, who seems to have agreed. The amateur hypnotist tried hard, but with no success. Then Duc grew angry. He rushed out of the cafe, ran all the way home, seized a revolver, returned to the cafe and bang, bang, bang! They took the would-be hypnotist, his friend and the other man to a hospital and Duc to jail.

But all's well that ends well, even in court. The wounded victims told judge and jury they were friends again, so the kind-hearted judge handed out two years' suspended sentence, Duc going free at once.

Devilfish Battle Ends With All but One Dead

Hamilton, Bermuda.—The epoch drama of the survival of the fittest is being enacted in the big octopi tank of the Bermuda aquarium. Whist Curator Louis L. Mowbray calls "the summer crunch" has caused the octopi to war upon each other. Only one battered devilfish remains out of what was said to be the finest collection in the world.

During the winter months the octopi live in peace and harmony, but as the water grows warmer the big octopi become quarrelsome and a submarine battle royal follows.

The specimen boat of the aquarium is scouring the reefs and coral bays for more examples of the fish.

Gophers Put Phone System Out of Business

Manteca, Calif. — An underground lead telephone cable was found to have been punctured allowing water to leak in and cause a "short" that put the system out of commission. It was determined that gophers had gnawed through the lead cable, the impetus of the rodents' teeth being clearly outlined.

WEAK SPELLS

"I was so weak," says Mrs. Josephine Cockcroft, of Baldock, S.C., "that I was not able to do anything.

"At certain times, I suffered dreadfully with pains in my back and sides. My head would hurt—felt like it would split open. Spells of weakness would last for weeks.

"I read of Cardui. I sent for a bottle and began taking it. My case was stubborn, and at times I almost lost hope, but I could see a little improvement. At last I began to feel much better. Then I improved rapidly. For the last year I have been in better health than I ever have been before.

"I give the credit to Cardui, for after I had given it a thorough trial, I got well."

PENNSYLVANIA MAY BE MORE LIBERAL

Campaign for Modification of Blue Laws.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Determined to liberalize the Pennsylvania blue laws passed in 1794, an amalgamation has been effected between two of the principal organizations favoring modification of the law insofar as it affects Sunday amusements here.

The Anti-Blue Law Association of Pennsylvania, which, according to John Mather, chairman of its board of directors, represents more than 60,000 members, has merged with the Open Sunday league of Pennsylvania for the common cause. The latter organization claims to have 375,000 members.

In furtherance of the campaign of the combined organizations, the newspapers of the state, 89 per cent of which are said to favor liberalization of the law, are being canvassed to determine the attitude of the people on the whole. Should a proposed modification or repeal of the 1794 statutes be considered advisable, it has been given the movement by a decision of the Dauphin County court at Harrisburg. The court, in effect, held that an individual can be penalized only to the extent of a $1 fine for violation of the Sunday closing law, and that the character of an amusement park, for instance, cannot be revoked if half by an individual because an individual has not elected to revoke.

Cuts Statute Ludicrous.

The case considered the operations on Sunday of Woodside park, an amusement park near here. The proprietor was fined $1 and has paid it every Monday while the park has been in operation. Officials of the Anti-Blue Law association and Open Sunday league have pointed out that under the decision of the Dauphin county court the 1794 statutes constitute "class legislation" because while an individual can operate by paying a small fine, corporations, such as the Philadelphia baseball clubs, are not permitted to open, as they run the risk of non-warrants proceedings. The Athletics, Philadelphia American league club, had such an experience some time ago.

Mather holds that the decision of the court makes the 1794 statute "more ludicrous than ever."

"If the law permits an individual to play baseball or operate motion pictures on Sunday," Mather said, "there is nothing more than class legislation when the same right is denied corporations."

Could Stop Trains.

"The law as it exists on the statute books at present could, if enforced, stop the railroad companies from operating trains, bar the operation of street cars, autos, automobiles, telephone, telegraph, and even radio, as all these are 'sending business.'"

Pointing out that a "commercial Sunday" is not desired or welcomed by his organization, Mather declared that he is set so much concerned with the open or closed question as he is with the fact that Pennsylvania is made an "inviting stock" in other states which do not have such strict laws.

"The blue law of 1794 must be repealed or modified," Mather said. "So long have the poor people been made to spend their recreation and pastime in other states on Sunday. Pennsylvania drives its people and visitors out the front door of the week. People who work five or six days a week are most surely entitled to some entertainment Sunday afternoon and evening."

Driven From a Palace by Hawaii Termites

Honolulu.—The termite, or "white ant," is the progenitor of royalty or government. Ravages of this little insect are responsible for the temporary evacuation soon of Iolani palace, once home of Hawaiian kings and queens, by the officials of the territorial government of Hawaii.

Termites have so extensively bored into the woodwork of the interior of the palace that it is to be entirely remodeled in steel, concrete and plaster. Meanwhile the governor and government heads are looking for a place to move.

Iolani palace was built by order of King Kalakaua in 1878. At his death in 1891 Queen Liliuokalani took possession for the remainder of her reign, which was terminated by the Hawaiian revolution of 1893. It stands on the site of the original home of King Kamehameha III, IV and V. It cost $350,000 when built. It is a brick construction, with a facing of cement. The interior is finished in Hawaiian woods. Its throne room is said to be the only throne room under the United States flag.

Court Rules Husband Is Head of Household

Dayton, Ohio.—The husband is the head of the household whether he likes it or not.

If he tells his wife to make home-brew and she gets arrested for doing it, the husband is the one to be punished.

Judge William C. Wiseman so ruled here when he pronounced Mrs. Ruby Lessinger not guilty of manufacturing and possessing beer.

Dry raiders testified they found 45 bottles of "high-powered" beer in the Lessinger home, which the wife claimed her husband directed her to make for him.

PARIS WILL HAVE PUPPET CONGRESS

Marionette Show Men of World Together.

Paris.—The first world marionette congress is to be held in Paris next October and will be attended by delegates from all over Europe and America. One of the principal problems to be discussed will be how Punch and Judy shows can be utilized in public schools for the teaching of such subjects as geography and history.

Czechoslovakia, which has over 2,700 puppet shows throughout the country, is to send the largest number of delegates, although a good representation is also expected from the United States, where interest in marionettes has been greatly increased. Russia will also be well represented.

According to an announcement by the committee in charge of the congress, one of the principal speeches which are said to favor liberalization of the law, are being canvassed to determine the attitude of the people on the whole. Should a proposed modification or repeal of the 1794 statutes be considered advisable, it has been given the movement by a decision of the Dauphin County court at Harrisburg. The court, in effect, held that an individual can be penalized only to the extent of a $1 fine for violation of the Sunday closing law, and that the character of an amusement park, for instance, cannot be revoked if half by an individual because an individual has not elected to revoke.

New mechanisms which are being used in different parts of the world to operate the marionettes will also form an important part of the congress. It is expected from the American delegates in this respect because of innovations which have recently made their appearance in the United States. Elaborate costuming, scenery and lighting arrangements will likewise be discussed.

The congress will attempt to facilitate the diffusion and publication of plays written especially for marionette theaters. It will aim to elevate such dramas to a high literary level, so that they will rank on the same basis as operas and dramatic works written for the regular theater. Even conferences are to have their Shakespeare and Mollere.

Hunt for Noah's Ark Promoted in Chicago

Washington.—Mount Ararat is again the goal of emper seekers. The Noah's Ark Exploration Association of Chicago has processed a petition to the State department setting forth its desire "to explore for Noah's Ark and excavate and administer such remains as it may find," and asking what steps are necessary to make formal application to the Turkish government for permission.

The letter is signed by William J. H. Strong, trustee, and at the top of the letterhead appears the following quotation:

"I believe Noah's Ark Is in existence and can be found.—William J. H. Strong, President and trustee Noah's Ark Exploration Association."

Beneath the name of the organization these words appear: "An Illinois corporation not for pecuniary profit, Box 505, Chicago, Illinois."

At the bottom of the sheet is printed:

"It is as legitimate for those who believe in Noah's Ark to search for it as it is for others to hunt for stone as bonds in the Sahara Desert."

State department officials said that Mr. Strong had been advised to get in communication with the United States embassy here.

German Has System to Take Poison From Drugs

Hamburg, Germany.—Prof. Hans Much, director of the University Institute of Tubercular Research, is said to have discovered a method of extracting poison from morphine and similar drugs, without lessening their medicinal value.

Record Family

London.—The Smith family of Egham last year, another family. It lays claim to being the tallest Smith family in the world. The father is six feet, the mother almost the same height and the only daughter, baby, is six feet three inches and can lift a nine-gallon cask of beer. Three boys in the family are all over six feet.

San Sebastian Is Cold to Beach Restrictions

San Sebastian, Spain.—The bathing suit restriction order which recently bobbed up here. A group of women addressed a letter to the city officials, asking that all women bathers be compelled to wear a three piece suit of prescribed dimensions. No action has been taken on the request.

Apropos of the regulations suggested for Spain's famous summer resort a Madrid paper recently printed a cartoon showing a girl about to go into the ocean, dressed in an 1880 model bathing suit, with a rudder around her neck. Standing by the girl is her mother.

"Am I safe?" the girl asks.

"Yes, daughter, but somebody might come along with an X-ray," replies the mother.

Golden Wedding Celebrated

One of the most delightful occasions that have taken place in Campbell County in recent years occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ike Rucker, near Concord, on September 3, when a host of friends assembled to help the couple celebrate the golden anniversary of their wedding. The occasion was made memorable by the affecting reunion of old friends, the unbounded hospitality of the Ruckers and friends, and reminiscences of the olden days. The several hundred friends who gathered around the generous tables found the greatest profusion of food,, prepared and served in a manner to suit the appetites of the most fastidious, awaiting them.

Dr. McNair, Presbyterian minister, congratulated the couple and spoke of the fine influence radiating from such a home as Mr. and Mrs. Rucker have maintained for half a century, and Dr. Wash Evans and H. C. Babcock, contemporaries of the bride and groom of fifty years ago, enlivened the gather ing with numerous anecdotes and diverting stories of former days. H. C. Babcock was best man at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Rucker fifty years ago.

Among those present were: Mr. Sam Franklin, who attended the wedding of Captain Rucker, father of Mr. Ike Rucker, seventy-five years ago, and Mr. Tiny Evans, both of whom are as erect and vigorous and handsome as they ever were in their palmiest days. Everybody rejoiced with Mr. and Mrs. Rucker. and congratulated the community on having so fine a couple. The Golden presents were handsome and numerous.
